Diagnosis

An exam and diagnosis is the first step in achieving a healthy mouth. We are able to take digital x-rays and view them right away with our portable x-ray system. X-rays are very important in the diagnosis process. They allow us to see in between the teeth, evaluate the bone level and see any infections that may be present. After the diagnosis process, we will then present a treatment plan for any needed treatment. We will also recommend a preventative recall program, based upon each individual's needs. Once we know the mouth is stable, we need to continue the stability by regular exams and cleanings.
